

Donald M. Barber
September 18, 2004
interviewed by Janice Walthour
at the Lexington Park Library
28 minutes, 47 seconds

TRACK 01

0:00 introduction, schooling, Hollywood, Banneker, then St. Mary's College, employed at Pathways, father, mother (Somerville),

TRACK 02

3:35 education experience, siblings' experience in segregated schools, experience in 1960s integration, teachers' expectation

TRACK 03

9:28 overall impression of education experience then and now, extended family that values education

TRACK 04

14:52 discrimination, homework

TRACK 05

17:57 intergenerational relationships, current generation's struggle shifts from economics and civil rights to distractions and pitfalls, roles of extended family members

TRACK 06

21:17 political system importance, voting

TRACK 07

24:52 early days at Sotterley and current service on the Board of Trustees (Sotterley Foundation), importance of Sotterley resource for African Americans, slaves descendents are productive and important citizens today